

Training Funding available through Home Building Skills Partnership Assistant/Site Manager Contextualised Training Modules

In collaboration with the Home Building Skills Partnership, CITB and NHBC, Hamilton Deed are pleased to offer a range of funded open courses through 2018. Designed for assistant/site managers, these courses are fully funded if you work within a home-building company or within their sub-contract supply chain.

The scheme is part of the HBSP drive to improve skills and build quality across the home building sector, we are developing minimum level training standards for a range of roles that can be used by HR and Talent Management teams, starting with Assistant / Site Manager.

The aim is to have an industry recognised competency level that is both robust and transferable. The HBSP have now developed a range of CITB funded contextualised short training courses to fill individual gaps in these standards, and help site managers build their competency, initially supported by training providers NHBC and Hamilton Deed. Starting in January 2018, and running to the end of May (there will be more options available post May), these are available to book now. Choose from over 130 training options across England and Scotland, which range from 1-5 days in duration.

To book or to find out more, please click or email as follows:
